

Die Zauberfrau (The Enchanting Woman)

Charlotte Pfeffer has magical powers. She can put a spell on men and make them fall in love with her! All she has to do is drop something, and the man has to look deep into her eyes while they both bend down. It sneaks up on him before he even notices. Since Charlotte has such a boring husband at home who is a much more of a slave to remote controls, user manuals and all technical innovations than to his wife's charm, she usually drops quite a few things. Whether it is her sons' swimming teacher or her co-actor during the production of the series „Our Little Clinic“, in which she plays the sweet little Dr. Anita Bach; whether it is her dentist or the mechanic in the garage next door: they all end up believing in her magic at one point in time! But then she is stuck with all of them - Lord, have mercy! To top it off, they're jealous of each other! And all Charlotte wants is an ordinary family life with a husband that pays attention to her! But she has to do a little more than just drop something to make her husband fall in love with her. The whole family almost falls apart before Charlotte finally comes to her senses about her real talents...

An upbeat, playful novel which mocks all types of men who fall for the superficial appeal of women. After her fourth best seller that sold 2.8 million copies, Hera Lind became the number one best selling author in Germany. She remained in the number one spot on the best seller list for two years. „Die Zauberfrau“ was filmed for the German public broadcasters, ZDF and is still occasionally aired on TV.
